BANQUET GIVEN BY YOUNG MEN

Of the Comrade Class Thursday Night—Covers Set For Twenty-Nine Members—Elegant Menu.

SPLENDID ADDRESSES MADE.

The Comrade Class of the Methodist Sunday school, of this city, gave an elegant banquet Thursday night. The guests were received in the Sunday school room where the banquet table was arranged. The decorations were in the class colors, black and gold, with several pretty plants used in the appointments. Crepe paper streamers of black and gold were suspended from the electric lights. The piano music was generously furnished by Miss Anna Edmondson, and the song, "The Little Church in the Wildwood" was rendered by eight Comrades.

After a grand march the guests found their places at the table and while all were standing an invocation was offered by the Rev. W. C. Frank, teacher and organizer of the Comrades. Emmett Edmondson, president of the class, acted as toastmaster of the evening. Mr. Edmondson said in part: This is the happiest time of my life, and I am glad to welcome you all here, glad that I be to see you here again, and gladdest of all will I be to see you here all the time. I think we have the best young men's class in Kentucky and I know we have the best teacher. (Applause.) I hope you all will come to Sunday school Sunday and bring some one with you.

Ira D. Behen, superintendent of the Methodist Sunday school, responded and made a toast to the class which made them appreciate themselves and their fellow men. He paid tribute to men, to their mothers and to the One, whom they should love and honor by kindly dealings with each other.

Owen Berry, vice-president created an up roar when he was called on for a toast. "I have had lots of experiences," said Mr. Berry, "but this has got my goat. I will say a few words if you boys promise to leave the glasses on the table." After the laughter had subsided Mr. Berry told them sincerely how glad he was they were all there and truly hoped they would all help to make the class bigger and better.

Chas. Jackson expressed his pleasure in being present at the banquet and a determination to come to Sunday school every Sunday. Mr. Jackson was one of the four fathers present, who not only attend Sunday school, but have little sons who come with them.

David B. Phelps smilingly glanced up and down the table and spoke for the whole crowd when he extended thanks to the committee for the excellent way in which the banquet was served. Later in the evening the chairman, Mrs. W. C. Frank, was called on for a toast. "Ladies and gentlemen," she responded, "I am here with great pleasure this evening because when I married I promised to serve." Those who assisted Mrs. Frank were: Misses Susette Sawyer, Anna Edmondson, Lenora McGavock, Ermine Virginia Cowherd, Mildred Babbage, Jeannette Burn and Luise Babbage.

"Now laugh and show your ignorance," said Vivian Pierce, when he began his toast. One shriek of laughter after another followed at his attempt to "speechify." Finally the

ACCIDENTALLY KILLED

Harry Helt Victim of Accident
While at Work on L. H. & St.
L. Trestle Near McQuady.

Irvington, March 1.—[Special.]—Harry Helt, a member of the bridge crew of the L. H. & St. L. R. Co., was accidentally killed near McQuady Saturday morning, by a falling piece of timber. Mr. Helt arrived from Walters, Okla., three weeks ago, and had worked with the crew just one week. He was twenty-four years of age, leaves a wife and two children, mother, a brother and two sisters. Mr. Helt lived here when a boy, but left for Oklahoma ten years ago and this was his first trip to his old home. The funeral was held from the Baptist church Monday morning, the Rev. Hutchinson conducted the services. The burial took place at Cedar Hill cemetery. Friends extend deepest sympathy to the bereaved ones, especially the young wife and mother, who are amongst strangers.

ORATORICAL CONTEST

Meets at Brandenburg—Francis Dillon Wins Ten Dollar Gold Piece—Reception in His Honor.

The Oratorical Contest of the Fourth Congressional District Oratorical Association was held at Brandenburg Friday evening, February 26. There were contestants from Brandenburg, Elizabethtown, Fordville and Hardinsburg. The judges were: Rev. Homer W. Carpenter, pastor of the Christian church of Shelbyville, Ky.; Miss Mattie B. Reid, of the English department of the Western Normal School, Bowling Green, Ky., and Miss Sweeney, teacher of English in the Jeffersonville High School. The judges pronounced all the orations above the ordinary, but their unanimous decision was that our representative, Mr. J. Francis Dillon, had easily won. The medal, a ten-dollar gold piece, was presented to him when the decision was announced.

Many compliments were passed upon him and his careful training. One of the judges, who has had considerable experience in this kind of work, insisted that we send him to the State Contest in Lexington next spring. This is the first time Hardinsburg has won, everyone is proud of Dillon and the school.

A public reception will be given in honor of Mr. Dillon by Prof. and Mrs. William and the Literary Society, of which he was a member. The reception will take place Friday evening, March 5, from 8 to 10 o'clock. All are cordially invited.

A Bright Future.

W. S. Ashby, of the Highland Nursery, near Cloverport, was in the city Saturday. When asked concerning the prospects of young orchards being planted, he said the outlook is good. The farmers have found by experience that they need something else besides tobacco, and that fruit is not only profitable but essential to the health of any community. That farmers should be very careful to select the variety of fruit best suited to their locality, and then care for their trees and in a very few years they would learn that Hancock could produce something else besides tobacco that would be a money crop.—Hancock Clarion.

spell broke and Mr. Pierce said seriously, "I hope you all will come to Sunday school every time you can. I will try to."

Andrew Ashby told his fellow Comrades how delighted he was to see them present and gave a toast most complimentary to the class.

The Rev. Mr. Frank gave the concluding remarks: "This is one of the few entertainments we hope to give. Next time, the plan will be larger with an increased guest list. Invitations will be extended to the wives and sweethearts. If you haven't a girl, be looking out for one."

He complimented the work of Mr. Edmondson, Mr. Berry and Chas. Fallon, secretary. Mr. Fallon is also treasurer. Ambition for a great and splendid record for the Comrades was the key-note of the teacher's and pastor's address.

At the banquet the young men present were as follows: Joe Ross, Ruther Pate, Donald Smith, Jess Bohler, Oscar Holder, Chas. Jackson, Darnell Gregory, David Phelps, Ira Behen, Libon Smith, Chas. Fallon, Vivian Pierce, Andrew Ashby, Conley Arnold, Elmer Hoffious, Jess Hall, Norris Robertson, Mariun Denton, Earl Bohler, Harry Berry, Raymond May, Robert Atkins, Mike Tucker, Horace Tucker, Emmett Edmondson, John Hall, Owen Berry, Stanley Brown, Rev. W. C. Frank.

Beautiful Selection For Next Sunday Night.

"Now the Day is Over" will be rendered next Sunday night at the Methodist church. This is an anthem of several charming parts and this announcement is made in the interest of those who love music.

Chris Neaubauer III.

JAMES D. BLACK IS CANDIDATE FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNORSHIP

James D. Black, of Harboursville, Knox County, has issued the following statement announcing his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant Governor in the Primary Election, August 7, 1915.

Democrats of Kentucky: Recognizing, in the fullest sense, your right to choose at the Primary Election to be held in August, 1915, those whom you prefer to be the candidates of the party to be voted for at the general election in next November, I am a candidate, subject to your will to be expressed at said Primary Election, for the nomination for Lieutenant Governor on the Democratic ticket. I am induced, in a measure, to make this announcement by a desire of my own to serve the people of our splendid State in the capacity of Lieutenant Governor, and also, in a measure, by suggestions of a few individuals whose personal and political friendship is real and in whose judgment I have and ought to have confidence. My past fealty to the Democratic party may be accepted by you, I confidently trust, as a sufficient guaranty that I shall, whether nominated or not, give to the ticket you may name and the principles for which our party stands, very faithful support, for that course has been my habit at all times since reaching legal age. If nominated and elected Lieutenant Governor, I promise you and the people of Kentucky to bring to the discharge of the duties of the office the very best service of which I may be capable. Whether or not I am equipped to properly discharge those duties, it is not for me to say. I submit that to your judgment and decision. I believe in a just and wise economy in public as well as in private business, and cordially agree that no one should be entrusted with responsible office who is not able and willing to perform his whole duty to the public whose interests he asks to be commissioned to serve. I believe those on whom the Constitution places the duty and responsibility of legislation for the people of the State ought to industriously employ the time the General Assembly may be in session, to needed legislation, complete that as quickly as a proper regard for the best interests of the State will permit, and then adjourn, diligently avoiding every unnecessary expense to the people. I have no doubt that those who have to do in an official way with the money of the community, or charged with the administration of public affairs, ought to act in relation to such, according to that high standard which the most prudent, careful, just and intelligent exercise in the conduct of their private business. If elected Lieutenant Governor, that standard shall be my guide in the labor the law assigns to me. In submitting my candidacy, I invite the scrutiny of the people of Kentucky, as to my fitness for the preferment thus sought. Very respectfully,

JAMES D. BLACK.

Several from here attended the play given in Hardinsburg last Monday night.

People on the "Branch Road" are very much wrought up over the arrangements made in regard to the mails. We are having worse service than we ever had thirty years ago when we depended on the stage coach service. Last week we only had one mail, the week before three. If something isn't done to correct it, we had better have it changed from the trains back to the old style of carrying it horseback through by land. Mr. Willis, of the "Record Press," delivered his papers Friday "by hand."

THEY ALL DEMAND IT

Cloverport, Like Every City and Town in the Union, Receives It.

People with kidney ills want to be cured. When one suffers the tortures of an aching back, relief is eagerly sought for. There are many remedies today that relieve, but not permanently. Doan's Kidney Pills have brought lasting results to thousands. Here is proof of merit from this vicinity.

W. M. Young, farmer, R. F. D. No. 3, Havesville, Ky., says: "One of my family had pains in her sides and across the small of her back. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills so highly recommended in the local papers, she got a supply at Oelze's Drug Store and began using as directed. In a short time, she was cured. She hasn't had any further need of a kidney remedy."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Young recommends. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

OIL INDUSTRY TO BE REVOLUTIONIZED

Will Increase Gasoline Output
200 Per Cent.

Washington. (Special) The announcement by Secretary of Interior Lane of the discovery by the United States bureau of mines of two chemical processes, which it is claimed, will be of tremendous importance to the oil industry.

The first of these processes promises to enable the independent refiners in this country to increase their output of gasoline from petroleum 200 per cent. more, according to Secretary Lane, who added: "With an estimated production on the part of the independent refiners of 12,000,000 barrels of gasoline in a year, this will mean an output from independents alone of 36,000,000 barrels greater than the total production today from all sources."

The second process includes the manufacture from crude petroleum of what is known chemically as toluol and benzol, both of which have been heretofore obtained from coal tar. As Germany has specialized far beyond other countries in byproducts from coal, the United States and the rest of the world have been dominated by that country as regard those products are the important bases for the production of dyestuffs and high explosives, and especially smokeless powder.

Application has been made by Dr. Rittman, on behalf of the federal government, to patent these processes in order to prevent any monopoly in their use, the patents to be dedicated to the American people.

A Specific Against Colds.

"If there is such a thing as a specific against colds, it is to be found in the sleeping porch or the open bed room. Next to that comes the cold sponge bath in the morning," says the Youths Companion. Be as careful as you can you will occasionally take cold and when you do you will find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a great help in enabling you to get rid of it. Try it. Obtainable everywhere.

CALUMET BAKING POWDER

ECONOMY—that's one thing you are looking for in these days of high living cost—Calumet insures a wonderful saving in your baking. But it does more. It insures wholesome food, tasty food—uniformly raised food. Calumet is made right—to sell right—to bake right. Ask one of the millions of women who use it—or ask your grocer.

You don't save money when you buy cheap or fly-on baking powder. Don't be misled. Buy Calumet. It's more economical—more wholesome—gives best results. Calumet is far superior to sour milk and soda.

the title stuck in my craw and it occurred to me that it was a mighty good motto for a salesman. You see people don't always buy goods on logic. Half the orders you get is where the buyer just takes a notion to give it. Of course your goods and prices have got to be right, but half the time it's the personal element that turns the scale—you never can tell. The way to do is to go after everything, like Hal Chase plays first base, see. And you can bet your bottom dollar that things are so constituted that a hard day's work will get results in the end."

PURE-BRED CHICKENS IN BRECKENRIDGE

The Farmers Home Journal had an energetic poultry number last week. Results of the valuable articles on poultry culture will be untold, and the advertisements of those who have pure-bred stock and eggs for sale, will not only be money realizers, but will stimulate progress in the pure-bred poultry movement. A large illustration was given showing a view of the yards where P. M. Beard, of Hardinsburg, raises his White Leghorns. We note with a deal of satisfaction the increased interest taken in pure-bred poultry culture in Breckenridge county. It is a great thing to see men and women taking hold of the opportunities that are nearest them—not only to attain financial success, but to make a living out of something that they can be proud of. Thousands of men and women to day are making a business of the poultry industry. The way to do this is not to sit and wish for a big poultry farm, but to begin on a small scale and build it up as your business affords. Twenty-five years ago 100 eggs a year were considered good laying for one hen, experts have produced a 200 eggs a year hen, and are now trying to produce the hen that will lay 350 eggs yearly.

W. B. Jenkins, in writing of poultry on the farm in the Journal, says: "The farmer can produce eggs at a less cost than anybody else. With thoroughbred, bred to lay hens, he can get more profit from a flock of chickens than can anyone else. With just a little more attention on his part, instead of leaving it all to his wife, he can make it pay. I am not aiming to detract one bit from the ability of the woman to care for poultry, because I know they understand chickens better than any man, but there are many things they can't do and shouldn't do. Much of the work is not fit for the woman.

Mr. Farmer, help your wife along. Buy her some thoroughbred poultry, give her a good place to keep them and plenty of feed of the right kind, and watch results."

VALUABLE QUESTIONS.

President Wilson delivered a speech in Continental Memorial Hall in the interest of Berea College, Kentucky, last Wednesday night in Washington, D. C. It is a great thing for a man or an institution to have a friend for away for the distance does not seem to matter if the friend is great and influential. Berea College will be greatly helped by our President for he spoke truths that have reached from Washington to Berea and from Berea all over the country.

Among some of the things President Wilson said and the press has published widely: "I have spent the greater part of my life doing what is called, teaching, but most of the pupils of most of our universities systematically resist being taught. I have been told that the human mind has infinite resources for resisting the introduction of knowledge." What is true of these university pupils, is true of all human beings. If there is a young man, who will let his father teach and advise him in business, if there is a young woman, who will gladly permit her mother to teach her to cook and to sew, we should like to have their pictures for The Breckenridge News. Sons and daughters would not make so many mistakes if they would first consult their parents about their undertakings, employees would save their employers a large amount of expense if they would just ask, before going ahead. The kindest employer we have ever known has always said to those who work with him, "If you don't know, just ask." But many, who are young and inexperienced, would rather fail than to ask for information. Asking foolish questions comes easy, but valuable questions are put off as the last resort to learn. The man who has learned to ask the valuable questions, is the man who never resists learning and is a great teacher for himself.

GOOD ROADS REVIVAL.

Kentucky is having a good roads revival. It has not come any too soon as the State has been back-sliding for sometime and already the children are suffering the sins of their parents who have neglected the roads. Ten years ago Kentucky ranked fourth from the front and today Kentucky ranks tenth from the front among all the States in mileage of improved roads. While the other States pushed forward, paid proper attention to road drainage, employed competent engineers and built the best bridges possible, Kentucky lost sight of road improvement.

The Department of Public Roads is not leaving a stone unturned to build up the roads in Kentucky again. Working in the same spirit and sincerity is the Kentucky Good Roads Association. Other organizations are lending energetic hands in this much needed work. Last week a roads engineers' convention was held in Louisville, and in many county seats of the State, meetings to forward the good roads movement are being held. At Hardinsburg, at a special term of the Fiscal Court, $5,000 was appropriated for road improvement in Breckenridge county. This means $10,000, as the State will bear one dollar for each dollar put up by the county. The Hon. Robert E. Woods, of Louisville, representing the Kentucky Good Roads Association, made a splendid good roads address and urged this county to take advantage of the opportunity to secure their portion of the State Aid fund due the tax payers of Breckenridge.

We welcome the revival of Good Roads in Kentucky. For years we have worked continuously for good roads and good news. They run parallel. We are anxious to see our correspondents drop from their letters, "Mud is plentiful and news is scarce."

B. W. Carter, secretary of the Corn, Clover and Stock Club, has started on his plans for the Country Fair at Irvington. The dates will be sometime in September. While Mr. Carter is making arrangements to hold the fair, the rest of us, may be working to get something good enough for it. We all owe it to each other to share the pleasure of our accomplishments and any success that we have attained with the public. We may give to the world the best we have, without courting publicity. If you raise a product on your farm this year that you are really proud of, do not hide it under a bushel basket or put it away in the cellar. For that which you have succeeded in, may be the very thing needed to encourage other farmers in this great work of agriculture.

BRECKENRIDGE COUNTY JOINS THE GOOD ROADS MOVEMENT.

Will Raise $5,000 and Will Ask State Aid For $5,000 --Great Deal of Enthusiasm and Plans Set at Work to Improve the Public Highways.

A splendid good roads meeting was held at Hardinsburg last week. It was not largely attended but the enthusiasm was there, and the few present took an active part and showed themselves to be good road men in fact.

It was a called meeting of the Fiscal Court and Judge Dowell invited the tax-payers and those interested in good roads to meet with them to discuss ways and means and a better system of road making.

Mr. Woods Speaks.

Robt. E. Woods, of the State Good Roads Association, was present and made a fine address on the subject. His speech was practical and covered every phase of the work. He enthused those present and called out several good speeches on the subject, all of which rung with the true spirit and the importance of doing something and doing it well and at once.

Where Money Will Be Used.

Judge Dowell said that his plan was to ask the court to appropriate $3,000 for repairing the Hardinsburg and Cloverport pike from the road fund, $1,500 from the Hardinsburg district and $1,500 from the Cloverport district, and a donation of $2,000 from citizens of Hardinsburg and Cloverport and the farmers living on the line of the pike. Then he said we will apply in the State for $5,000, making $10,000 to be expended in putting the pike in a condition that will come up to the plans required by the State law.

The proposition was unanimously endorsed by the meeting and recommended to the court for their approval.

The court met in executive session Saturday and approved the plans, appropriated $3,000 from the road funds of the First and Second districts and made application for $5,000 from the State.

ROBERT A. SMITH DIES SUDDENLY

In Louisville--Brought to His Old Home at Hardinsburg For Last Tribute and Burial--He Leaves Four Daughters.

FUNERAL HELD SUNDAY.

Hardinsburg, March 1—(Special)—The community was shocked last Thursday night on learning of the sudden death of Mr. Robert Abel Smith, an aged and respected citizen of Hardinsburg. He was spending the winter with his daughter and her husband, Rev. Dr. Delaware W. Scott, pastor of Parkland Christian church, Louisville, Ky. Until recently his health was good for one of his age, but suddenly heart trouble developed, and notwithstanding the fact that he had every attention, he died from this cause in the arms of his son-in-law, the Rev. Mr. Scott, at 8:15 Thursday evening, February 25.

Mr. Smith was born near the place that is now called Axtel, in Breckenridge county, Ky., 1837. His parents moved to Hardinsburg when he was a mere child and for seventy years he had made this place his permanent home. In 1863 he was married by the Rev. James Taylor to Miss Miriam Colgan, formerly of Louisville. To this union there were born seven children—two sons and five daughters—four of whom are still living: Mrs. A. M. Kincheloe, of Hardinsburg; Mrs. O. R. Hardin, of Cloverport; Mrs. Joel H. Pile, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. D. W. Scott, of Louisville, at whose home he was when he died.

The remains were brought Saturday evening to Hardinsburg for burial and were taken to the home of Dr. A. M. Kincheloe where scores of friends gathered to sympathize with the bereaved and left many beautiful floral tributes.

All of his daughters were present, as were, also, all of his sons-in-law except Mr. Pile, who, on account of the suddenness of the notice, could not arrange his business affairs in Washington in time to get away. The three half brothers of the deceased, Messrs. Thurman Smith, of Louisville; H. L. Smith, of Louisville, and Roland Smith, of Stephensonport, were also here to pay their last tribute of respect.

The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the M. E. church. It was simple, consisting of suitable music by the choir, the ritualistic service by the pastor, Rev. S. K. Hunt, and brief memorials by Prof. T. Sanford Williams and Dr. Scott. The remains were laid to rest in the church cemetery by the side of his wife who preceded him to the great beyond thirty-four years ago.

Upon special request of the family a few paragraphs from the eulogy spoken by Prof. Williams are here appended, after pathetically recounting the home life of the deceased, Mr. Williams said: "On the margin of the book that fell from the lifeless hand of the bishop in Victor Hugo's Les Miserables, were found these words: 'O, you who are! Ecclesiastes calls you Good. The Book of Kings calls you Truth. St. John calls you The Word; but Solomon calls you Mercy, and that is the fairest of all your names.' When I consider the unbounded mercy of God, the earth scenes I have just portrayed are transformed into scenes beyond and through the senses of fond hope. I think I see Mr. Smith sitting not on his old porch at home, but at the foot of the throne of God on High; not mowing his beloved lawn, but roaming through the green fields of heaven; not sitting beneath one of the old trees planted by his own hand, but resting under the tree of life; not eating of the apples of his own garden, but feasting upon the ambrosial fruit above; not drinking from his old, old well, but quenching his thirst from the water of the River of Life. I think I hear him singing, not the tender lullaby that he often sang to my babies as the soft twilight appeared, but the song that even angels can not sing, 'I've been redeemed by the blood of the Lamb'.

"Farewell, 'Uncle Bobby!' The memory of thy beautiful life, of thy great heart, of thy many acts of kindness and of thoughtfulness, will remain green and fresh in our minds until we, too, like thou art today, are placed in the quiet casket or consigned to the silent tomb."

general agent, located in Owensboro, will be abolished March 1. The office is now being held by Leon Marion, who for the past two years has been in charge.

The notification was received with news relative to Mr. Hudson's plan for abolishing the local office. Mr. Hudson stated that on account of the decrease in the shipping business, which has been experienced since the war began, the necessity of cutting down expenses has become pronounced. The heavy expense of maintaining the service of a general agent, yard master and stenographer are considered too great by President Hudson, under present circumstances.

Mr. Marion will probably be continued in the employ of the company in Louisville in some other capacity.—Owensboro Inquirer.

The Million Dollar Mystery

CHAPTER XI.

When Jones received the telegram that Florence was safe, the iron nerve of the man broke down. The suspense had been so keenly terrible that the sudden relief left him almost hysterically weak. Three weeks of waiting, waiting. Not even the scoundrel and his wife who had been the principal actors in the abduction had been found. From a great ship in midocean they had disappeared. Doubtless they had hidden among the immigrants, who, for little money, would have fooled all the officers on board. There was no doubt in Jones' mind that the pair had landed safely at Madrid.

As for Susan, she did have hysterics. She went about the room, wailing and laughing and wringing her hands. You would have thought by her actions that Florence had just died. The sight of her stirred the saturnine lips of the butler into a smile. But he did not remonstrate with her. In fact, he rather envied her freedom in emotion. Man cannot let go in that fashion; it is a sign of weakness; and he dared not let even Susan see any sign of weakness in him.

So the reporter had found her, and she was safe and sound and on her way to New York? Knowing by this time something of the reporter's courage, he was eager to learn how the event had come about. When he had not had a telephone message from Norton in 48 hours, he had decided that the Black Hundred had finally succeeded in getting hold of him. It had been something of a blow; for while he looked with disfavor upon the reporter's frank regard for his charge, he appreciated the fact that Norton was a staff to lean on, and had behind him all the power of the press, which included the privilege of going everywhere even if one could not always get back.

As he folded the telegram and put it into his pocket, he observed the man with the opera glasses over the way. He shrugged. Well, let him watch till his eyes dropped out of his head; he would see only that which was intended for his eyes. Still, it was irksome to feel that no matter when or where you moved, watching eyes observed and chronicled these movements.

Suddenly, not being devoid of a sense of dry humor, Jones stepped over to the telephone and called up her highness the Princess Perigoff.

"Who is it?"

He was forced to admit, however reluctantly, that the woman had a marvelously fine speaking voice.

"It is Jones, madam."

"Jones?"

"Mr. Hargrave's butler, madam."

"O! You have news of Florence?"

"Yes." It will be an embarrassing day for humanity when some one invents a photographic apparatus by which two persons at the two ends of the telephone may observe the facial expressions of each other.

"What is it? Tell me quickly."

"Florence has been found, and she is on her way back to New York. She was found by Mr. Norton, the reporter."

"I am so glad! Shall I come up at once and have you tell me the whole amazing story?"

"It would be useless, madam, for I know nothing except what I learned from a telegram I have just received. But no doubt some time this evening you might risk a call."

Surrounded by Strange and Ominous Faces.

"Ring up the instant she returns. Did she say what train?"

"No, madam," lied Jones, smiling.

He hung up the receiver and stared at the telephone as if he would force his gaze in and through it to the woman at the other end. Flesh and blood! Well, greed was stronger than that. Treacherous cat! Let her play; let her weave her nets, d'g her pits. The day would come, and it was not far distant, when she would find that the mild eyed moneys were just as deadly as the cobra, and far more cunning.

The heads of the Black Hundred must be destroyed. Those were the criteria. What good to denounce them, to send them to a prison from which, with the aid of money and a tremendous secret political pull, they might readily find their way out? They must be exterminated, as one kills off the poisonous plague rats of the Orient. A woman? In the law of reprisal there was no sex.

Shortly after the telephone episode (which rather puzzled the princess) she received a wire from Braine, which announced the fact that Florence and five had escaped and were coming to New York on train No. 25, and advised her to meet the train en route. She had to fly about to do it.

When Captain Bannock released Braine, he had been in no enviable frame of mind. Tricked, fooled by the girl, whose mind was as unclouded as his own! She had succeeded in bribing a coal stoker, and had taken him unaware. The man had donned the disguise he had laid out for shore approach, and the blackhead Bannock had never suspected. He had not recognized Norton at all. It was only when Bannock explained the history of the shanghai stoker that he realized his real danger. Norton! He must be pushed out of the board. After this episode he could no longer keep up the pretense of being friendly. Norton, by a rare stroke of luck, had forced him out into the open. So be it. Self-preservation is in no wise looked upon as criminal. The law may have its ideas about it, but the individual recognizes no law but its own.

It was Braine whom he loved and admired, or Norton whom he hated as a dog with rabies hates water. With Norton free, he would never again dare return to New York openly. This meddling reporter aimed at his ease and elegance.

He left the freighter as soon as a boat could carry him ashore. The fugitives would make directly for the railroad, and thither he went at top speed, to arrive ten minutes too late.

"Free!" said Florence, as the train began to increase its speed.

Norton reached over and patted her hand. Then he sat back with a sudden shock of dismay. He dived a hand into a pocket, into another and another. The price of the telegram he had sent to Jones was all he had had in the world; and he had horrified that from a friendly stoker. In the excitement he had forgotten all about such a contingency as the absolute need of money.

"Florence, I'm afraid we're going to have trouble with the conductor when he comes."

"Why?"

He pulled out his pockets suggestively. "Not a postage stamp. They'll put us off at the next station. And," with a glance in the little mirror between the two windows, "I shouldn't blame them a bit." He was unshaven, he was wearing the suit substituted for his own; and Florence, sartorially, was not much better off.

She smiled, blushed, stood up, and turned her back to him. Then she sat down again. In her hand she held a small dilapidated roll of banknotes.

"I had them with me when they abducted me," she said. "Besides, this ring is worth something."

"Thank the Lord!" he exclaimed, relieved.

So there was nothing more to do but be happy; and happy they were. They were quite oblivious to the peculiar interest they aroused among the other passengers. This unshaven young man, in his ragged coat and soiled jersey; this beautiful young girl, in a wrinkled homespun, her glorious blonde hair awry; and the way they looked at each other during those lulls in conversation peculiar to lovers the world over, impressed the other passengers with the idea that something very unusual had happened to these two.

The Pullman conductor was not especially polite; but money was money, and the stockholders, waiting for their dividends, made it impossible for him to reject it. The regular conductor paid them no more attention than to grumble over changing a $20 bill.

So, while these two were hurrying on to New York, the plotters were hurrying east to meet them. The two trains met and stopped at the same station about eighty miles from New York. The princess, accompanied by Vroon, who kept well in the background, entered the car occupied by the two castaways.

In the mirror at the rear of the car Norton happened to cast an idle glance, and he saw the princess. Vroon, however, escaped his eye.

"Be careful, Florence," he said. "The princess is in the car. The game begins again. Pretend that you suspect nothing. Pretty quick work on their part. And that's all the more reason why we should play the comedy well. Here she comes. She will recognize you, throw her arms around you, and

"I'll give you twenty dollars for the use of that rig of yours."

"Can't do it mister."

"But it's a case of humanity, sir!" indignantly. "You are refusing to aid the unfortunate."

The farmer thought it over for a moment. "All right. You can have the buggy for twenty dollars. When you get to the village take the nag to Doc Sanders' livery. He'll know what to do."

"Thank you. Help me in with her."

Vroon drove away without the least intention of going toward the village. As a result, when Florence came to her senses she found herself surrounded by strange and ominous faces. At first she thought that they had taken her from the wreck out of kindness; but when she saw the cold, impassive face of the man Vroon she closed her eyes and lay back in the chair. Well, ill and weak as she was, they should find that she was not without a certain strength.

In the meantime Norton revived and looked about in vain for Florence. He searched among the crowd of terrified passengers, the hurt and the unarmed, but she was not to be found. He ran back to the princess and helped her out of the broken car.

"Where is Florence?" she asked dazedly.

"God knows! Here, come over and sit down by the fence till I see if there is a field telegraph."

They had already erected one, and his message went off with a batch of others. This time he was determined not to trust to chance. The shock may have brought back Florence's recent mental disorder, and she may have wandered off without knowing what she was doing. On the other hand, she may have been carried off. And against such a contingency he must be fortified. Money! The curse of God was upon it; it was the trail of the serpent, spreading poison in its wake.

By and by the princess was able to walk; and, supporting her, he led her to the road, along which they walked slowly for at least an hour. They might very well have waited for the relief train. But he could not stand the thought of inactivity. The princess had her choice of staying behind or going with him. He hated the woman, but he could not refuse her aid. She had a cut on the side of her head, and she limped besides.

They stopped at the first farmhouse, explained what had happened, and the mistress urged them to enter. She, she had seen no one, and certainly not a young woman. She must have wandered off in another direction. She ran into the kitchen for a basin and towel and proceeded to patch the princess' hurts.

She was extremely uneasy. That she should be under obligation to Norton galled her. There was a spark of conscience left in her soul. She had tried to destroy him, and he had been kind to her. Was he a fool or was he deep, playing a game as shrewd as her own? She could not tell. Where was Vroon? Had he carried Florence off?

An hour later a man came in.

"Hullo! More folks from the wreck?"

"Where's the horse and buggy, Jake?" his wife asked.

"Rented it to a man whose daughter was hurt. He went to the village."

"Will you describe the daughter?" asked Norton.

The princess twisted her fingers.

The farmer rudely described Florence.

"Have you another horse and a saddle?"

"What's your hurry?"

"I'll tell you later. What I want now is the horse."

"What is to become of me?" asked the princess.

"You will be in good hands," he answered briefly. "I am going to find out what has become of Florence. Is there a deserted farm-house hereabouts?" he asked of the farmer.

"Not that I recollect."

"Why yes, there is, Jake. There's that old hut about two miles up the fork," volunteered the wife. "Where the Swede died last winter."

"By jingo! I'm going into the village and see if that man brought in the rig."

"But get my horse first. My name is James Norton, and I am on the Star in New York. Which way do I go?"

"First turn to the left. Come on; I'll get the horse for you."

Once the horse was saddled, Norton set off at a run. He was unarmed; he forgot all about this fact. His one thought was to find the woman he loved. He was not afraid of meeting a dozen men, not while his present fury lasted.

And he fell into an ambush within a hundred yards of his goal. They dragged him off the horse and buffeted and mislaid him into the hut.

"Both of them!" said Vroon, rubbing his hands.

"I know you, you Russian rat!" cried Norton. "And if I ever get out of this I'll kill you out of hand! Damn you!"

"O, yes; talk, talk; but it never hurts any one," jeered Vroon. "You'll never have the chance to kill me out of hand, as you say. Besides, do you know my face?"

"I do. The mask doesn't matter."

"Be Silent, You Scum."

You're the man who had me shanghai. The voice is enough."

"Very good. That's what I wished to know. That's your death warrant. We'll do it like they used to do it at the old Academy; tie you to the railroad track. We shall not hurt you at all. If some engine runs over you heaven is witness we did not guide the engine. Remember the story of the boy and the cat?" with sinister amiability. "The boy said he wasn't pulling the cat's tail, he was only holding it; the cat did the pulling. Bring him along men. Time is precious, and we have a good deal to do before night settles down. Come on with him. The track is only a short distance."

"Jim, Jim!" cried Florence in anguish.

"Never you mind, girl; they're only bluffing. They won't dare."

"You think so?" said Vroon. "Wait and see." He turned upon Florence. "He is your lover. Do you wish him to die?"

"No, no!"

"We promise to give him his freedom twelve hours from now on condition that you tell where that money is."

"Florence!" warned Norton.

Vroon struck him on the mouth. "Be silent, you scum!"

"It is in the chest Jones, the butler, threw into the sound," she said bravely. And so it might be, for all she knew.

Vroon laughed. "We know about where that is."

"Florence, say nothing on my account. They are not the kind of men who keep their word."

"Eh?" anarled Vroon. "We'll see about that." He glanced at his watch. "In half an hour the freight comes along. It may become stalled at the wreck. But it will serve."

Norton knew very well that if need said must they would not hesitate to execute a melodramatic plan of this character. It was the way of the Slav; they had to make crime abnormal in order to enjoy it. They could very well have knocked him on the head then and there and have done with him. But the time used in conveying him to the railroad might prove his salvation. Nearly four hours had passed since the sending of the telegram to Jones.

They bound Florence and left her seated in the chair. As soon as they were gone she rolled to the floor. She was able to right herself to her knees, and after a torturous five minutes reached the fireplace. She burnt her hands and wrists, but the blaze was the only knife obtainable. She was free.

Jones arrived with half a dozen policemen. Vroon alone escaped.

The butler caught Florence in his arms and nearly crushed the breath out of her. And she was so glad to see him that she kissed him half a dozen times. What if he was her father's butler? He was brave and loyal and kind.

"They tied him to the track," she cried. "Look at my wrists!" The butler did so, and kissed them tenderly. "And I saved him."

Jones stretched out a hand over Florence's shoulder. "When the time comes," he said; "when the right time comes and my master's enemies are confounded. But always the rooks, never the hawks, do we catch. God bless you Norton! I don't know what I should have done without you."

"When a chap's in love," began Norton, embarrassedly.

"I know, I know," interrupted Jones. "The second relief train is waiting. Let us hurry back. I shan't feel secure till we are once more in the house."

So, arm in arm, the three of them went down the tracks to the hand car which had brought the police.

And now for the iron bound chest at the bottom of the sea.

INTER-COUNTY SEAT SYSTEM OF HIGHWAYS

Commonwealth of Kentucky, Department of Public Roads, Frankfort
ROBERT C. TERRELL,
 Commissioner

STATE AID IS NOW UP TO YOU

In the greater number of counties in Kentucky, the present method of road building is the same as that which obtained in England in the days of Queen Elizabeth. The result is that we have been spending some $2,000,000 a year for roads in Kentucky with no roads to show for it.

"One hundred years ago, Kentucky put into operation the plan of State aid. Seventy-five years ago that plan was discontinued. But, in the interval practically all of the improved highways to which the State can now lay claim were constructed. The counties that got the lion's share were the counties of the Blue Grass.

"Kentucky has 10,000 miles of improved roads, but there are 89 pauper counties and 66, or more than one-half, without a single mile of improved road. The counties that the State aided a hundred years ago are found in neither column. They are and for seventy-five years have been the richest in the State. Kentucky has just waked up from a sleep of seventy-five years. The right of the State to grant aid in the building of roads has been restored by Constitutional Amendment. The granting of that aid is safeguarded by the condition that not a dollar of the State's money is to be paid out until the roads constructed with State aid conform to the specifications drawn up and laid down by the State Bureau of Good Roads. The local magistrate and the contractor with a pull are to be no longer the court of last resort.

"If the money raised for road building with State aid is not intelligently expended, the head of the State Bureau and his assistants and the Governor who appoints them can be held responsible. For the first time responsibility is to go with authority.

"The plan to construct a State-wide inter-county seat system of highways, 6200 miles in extent, has received the official approval of the General Assembly and the Governor and needs only concerted action by the business men and counties to be carried into effect. That system can be completed in fifteen years without Federal aid. With Federal aid, which is sure to come, in half that time.

"When completed, it will make every one of the 120 county seats in Kentucky the center of not less than four roads each forming an integral part in the State-wide system and over that system will be hauled 85 per cent of the road traffic of the State. It will add not less than $20 to the value of every acre that fronts it. It will increase the value of every product of farm or mine. It will make for good schools, good churches, good citizenship. It will substitute prosperity for pauperism.

All that is needed to make actual these possibilities is that the counties in Kentucky avail themselves of State aid. They can do this by an issue of bonds as have Lewis and Carter, by popular subscription as has Rockcastle, or by local taxation as have Jefferson, Mercer and eight other counties. The county which fails to avail itself of State aid will be contributing money for the building of roads in other counties. There are only four counties in the State that, under the State aid plan will pay out more money than they receive. They are Jefferson, Fayette, Campbell and Kenton. The law was enacted to force the richer counties to help the poorer. There is no county that the State does not stand ready to help provided it will help itself. The State road tax of 5 cents on the $100 has to be paid whether the county builds roads or not. The county that refuses to accept from the State one dollar in addition to every one that it puts up, is not going to escape paying the general tax. It is simply giving to other counties the money that ought to be spent on its own roads. If the Fiscal Court of any county fails to act, the intelligent citizenship and the commercial organizations of that county should force it to act.

"The time is now. The opportunity is here. What is your county going to do with it?"

Robert J. McBryde, Jr.

—President Kentucky Good Roads Association.

This is a picture of J. N. Mayfield, his mule team and freight wagon. Mr. Mayfield makes a business of hauling merchandise from Somerset to Acorn, Kentucky. The roads are now in such condition that it requires one day to go from Acorn to Somerset, and one day to return from Somerset to Acorn, and the condition of the road prevents him from hauling more than 1,000 pounds. Figuring the team at three dollars per day, the driver at one dollar, and meals of the driver and keep of the team enroute and at Somerset over night, we find that the cost of hauling 1,000 pounds of merchandise from Somerset to Acorn is one dollar per hundred pounds. On a good road, such as Kentucky will have when the inter-county seat highway system is completed, the same team of mules, or one as good, can make the round trip in one day and reduce the cost of hauling merchandise from Somerset to Acorn to ten cents on one hundred pounds.

HUBBARD GLACIER

Alaska's Gigantic Frozen River as It Meets the Sea.

THE MOTHER OF ICEBERGS.

Rumblings and Roarings That Come as the Masses of Ice Break Away From the Face of the Lofly Cliff to Start on Their Ocean Voyages.

The birth of an iceberg is strikingly described in a report made to the National Geographic society by R. S. Tarr and Lawrence Martin, who headed the expeditions of the society to Alaska for the study of the behavior of glaciers there.

The front of the Hubbard glacier, measured in a straight line, is three and one-half to four miles wide. But since the ice cliff has a sinuous form with projections in the center it is in reality much longer than this, the total length being between four and one-half and five miles. This cliff rises between 250 and 300 feet above the water and extends an unknown distance below it.

"One usually needs to wait but a few moments to hear from some part of the cliff the thunder-like rumble or roar which is the first announcement of an iceberg's fall, followed a few moments later by the appearance of a great swell, which on reaching the shore forms a line of white breakers even at a distance of several miles from the ice cliff.

"By watching the ice cliff one may see the huge masses fall from the ice front and a fountain of water dash perhaps even to the top of the glacier and then in a few seconds hear the report which the rending of the glacier sends out.

"One is fascinated by the performance. Sometimes it is only a small piece that falls, and then a sharp single report like the crack of a pistol goes through the air; again a part of the front crumbles and the down-falling ice, broken into small pieces, seems from a distance like a fountain of water, while the report is only a low rumble; at other times huge masses break away, forming large icebergs, and the noise then produced is like the heavy rumble of distant thunder, and at rare intervals one may see a huge mass of blue or black ice thrust itself up from below the flood, some distance from the glacier front, as a part of the submerged ice foot is broken off, and then no report is heard, but the wave that follows is far greater than usual.

A Wonderful Healing Influence In Kidney Troubles.

A year and a half ago I was taken with a severe attack of kidney trouble that pained me to such an extent that morphine had to be given me. Was attended by a doctor who pronounced it as Stone in the Bladder and prescribed Lithia Water. I took Lithia Water and Tablets for some time and received no relief from them. I stopped taking medicines for some time, later having some Swamp-Root in the house I decided to try it and felt much relieved. While taking the second bottle commenced to pass Gravel in urine until I had passed in all at least a half dozen or more and have not suffered the slightest since—and in all have taken one bottle and a half and feel very grateful to Swamp-Root.

Yours very truly,
 H. W. SPINKS,
 Camp Hill, Ala.

Personally appearing before me this 16th day of August, 1910, H. W. Spinks, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

A. B. LEE,
 Ex. of Justice of Peace.

Letters to
 Dr. Kilmer & Co.

thunder, and at rare intervals one may see a huge mass of blue or black ice thrust itself up from below the flood, some distance from the glacier front, as a part of the submerged ice foot is broken off, and then no report is heard, but the wave that follows is far greater than usual.

"The water waves which follow the discharge of icebergs from the front of Hubbard glacier are of great magnitude. In September, 1913, for example, the big steamship Princess Miquilna was aground on a reef just west of Oster Island with the members of the International geological congress, who visited Yakutat bay under the guidance of the Junior author. The ship lay somewhat over a mile from the glacier, and yet the water wave following the discharge of icebergs from Hubbard glacier caused the steamer to roll until she took in water on the main deck as first one side and then the other was tipped far down by the iceberg waves.

"There are periods when for an hour or two there is very little discharge and then periods, fully as long, when scarcely a moment elapses without the sound of icefalls from some part of the glacier front. It is possible that these differences are in some way related to the state of the tide, but we have not determined whether the periods of quiet and activity form part of a regular cycle or are merely irregular intervals due to accumulation of strain and relief from strain or to expansion and contraction under sunlight.

"While there are periods of relative quiet, they are not periods of absolute repose, and they occupy far less time than the periods of activity. Day and night the ice falls, and the reports that pass out through the air are so frequent that it is fair to speak of the glacier as almost ceaselessly active. The noise disturbs one's sleep at first, and sometimes, when an unusually heavy fall occurs, wakens one even after he has grown accustomed to the ordinary rumble. A sense of nervous relief is felt when camp is removed to a part of the flood to which the iceberg roar and the breakers on the coast do not reach."

Feed Out Your Hogs Six Weeks Earlier.

In every lot of hogs on feed two or three fatten quickly and actually eat less than others. If all would fatten like these, the entire drove would be ready for the market six weeks earlier and to save six weeks feed is an item that you fully understand.

The hog that fattens easily must be in prime physical condition. The H. A. Thomas Hog Powder is a conditioner for hogs. It keeps their system clean and healthy and enables them to fatten quickly without falling a prey to the usual diseases of hogs. The H. A. Thomas Hog Powder is not stock food. It's straight medicine, and we took the agency because it enables you to feed out your hogs much earlier. For sale at Wedding's Drug Store, Cloverport, Ky.

Later Katharine was heard to exclaim:

Battleships Now and Then.

A battleship today is not the same as a battleship in Nelson's day. The old wooden three decker could only be destroyed by long and desperate close quarter fighting. It would stand hours of battering. It would take hundreds of shot and still be capable of fighting. But today one unlucky shot, one blow from a torpedo, and the great fighting machine is a heap of scrap iron.—London Graphic.

SYMPTOMS

Slight Symptoms Sometimes Presage Serious Results.

Do you feel tired, have you a sallow complexion, constipation, headache, bad breath, sleeplessness or circles around your eyes? If so, you are undoubtedly suffering from some liver complaint.

Perhaps you don't feel very badly now, but delay is dangerous. To allow your liver to continue out of order, is to invite a serious chronic illness.

Whenever you have the slightest symptoms of liver trouble, stop it immediately. You can do it harmlessly and mildly by taking LIV-VER LAX, the natural vegetable compound that is replacing calomel everywhere. It has all the effectiveness, not the effect of calomel. Insist on getting the original LIV-VER LAX, bearing the likeness and signature of L. K. Grigsby, which is guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded. For sale by Kincheloe's Pharmacy.

J. D. SR., TO FIGHT THE OHIO TAX SUIT

Declares He Is Not Resident of the State.

New York, (Special) A deposition was made by John D. Rockefeller, Sr., at his home in Pocantico Hills in support of his contention that, although he lived for seven months in Ohio, in that state's fiscal year of 1913, he was not really a resident of the state, and therefore he should not be compelled to pay $1,150,700 personal taxes on $311,000,000.

The tax assessed on Mr. Rockefeller has been upheld by the Ohio board of complaints, but Mr. Rockefeller obtained an injunction restraining the state from collecting it. The deposition taken in the effort to have the injunction made permanent.

It was revealed in the course of the examination that Mr. Rockefeller was taxed $311,000,000 at the rate of 37 cents on each $100, the total assessment being about one-fourteenth of the entire Ohio assessment of $14,647,657. The claim of the state for the tax is based on the law of Ohio, which provides that if a man resides in the state for the greater part of the year he has legally established his residence there, subjecting himself to the inspection and levy of the Ohio assessors.

A GENERAL SURVEY OF THE WAR

London, (Special) The admiralty has announced officially that the Turkish forts at the entrance of the Dardanelles have been reduced by the combined Anglo-French fleet of thirty-two ships which have been bombarding the positions intermittently for more than two months.

The fact is regarded in official circles here as one of the most important accomplishments of the allies since the beginning of the war and predictions are freely heard that the fall of Constantinople will come before long.

Probably the most significant and important changes in British foreign policy in the past one hundred years was announced in the house of commons by Sir Edward Grey, the minister of foreign affairs, when he stated, in reply to a question from the floor, that England is willing to abandon her traditional position toward Russian acquisition of a "warm water" port and will support the intentions recently expressed by M. Sazonoff, the Russian foreign secretary in the word "that Russia intends permanently to occupy Constantinople."

Athens informs London that Constantinople is threatened not only from the sea, but likewise by land, and that Russian transports on the Black sea are about to embark an army for an invasion of Turkey. Turkish submarines in the Bosphorus are said to be showing the greatest activity in preparing to meet this latest danger.

In the region of Souain and Beausjour the operations have been continued in conditions favorable to us. We captured, notably a German work north of Mesnil-les-Hurlus and decimated and dispersed by our fire an enemy column on the march southeast of Tahure.
